...of the most shocking events that ...ever occurred in this State is reported ...by telegraph columns this morning. ...Hon. Sharon Tyndale, late Secretary ...of State of Illinois, was murdered at ...his residence on Friday evening. From the ...fact that his watch and jewelry were not ...taken, it has been prematurely inferred by ...some that robbery could not have formed ...a motive for the official, though it is be... lieved, that some enemy, to the account of ...or upward, was taken. We should soon... after from such fiends of this life assassins ...a professional villains; as it is the habit ...such people to avoid taking any articles ...for possession or disposal of which their ...connection with the murder might ...be known. He left Spring... ...shortly after Midnight, by ...the [illegible] which train yesterday morning ...at Lordin, and was found dead a short ...time from his residence, having been ...through the head. The murderer ...has evading intense excitement in ...Springfield, and will excite a kindred feel... ...throughout the State. Mr. Tyndale ...was a widow and several children. He ...a native of Pennsylvania, where his ...father, General Hector Tyndale, has be... known both as a soldier and politi... Sharon Tyndale removed to Illi... more than twenty years ago, and fol... his profession of civil engineer at ...ville, St. Clair County, and immedi... that of an amateur farmer, until he ...Secretary of State, entering ...his office simultaneously with the ... term of Governor Oglesby, after ...he resided at Springfield. His ...election was due in part to his popu... among the Germans, whose lan... he spoke, and in part to the in... of Governor Koerner, to whom he ...related by marriage.

SEX IN BUSINESS AND POLITICS.

Mr. Schuckler, in a temperate and in... reply to our views on "Sex in ...," presents a series of questions ...which seem to be designed to sustain ...propositions, viz.: First, that men and ...are capable, notwithstanding the ...ual influence, of co-operating wisely in ...vernment and business enterprises gen... ...ly; and, secondly, that women, in the ...gregate, have attained to a degree ...of political power with men, and that ...ly among the ballot to counteract the ...tribution of this power among women ...mselves. Under the first head, Mrs. ...helm cites the attendance of male ...d female students in a college. ...answer, this is neither to ...estion, nor is it a participation ...government or business enterprises ...students in a college are under fixed ...ns. It requires both officers and stu... to constitute the college and carry on ...association. Between the officers and ...dents the relation is one of authority ...the part of the officers, and subordina... on that of the students. ...Mrs. Swinehoe's military experiences ...a nurse in hospitals, etc., do not show ...at men and women can co-operate in any ...vernment or business enterprise suc... ...fully. She and her fellow-nurses ...co-operated with the men in Spitting, ...r did they with her in nursing. Here ...s a strictly feminine occupation, as ...she was masculine. Was Itself is strictly ...government and business enterprise, ...or will the women, like Semiramis and ...Joan of Arc, have shown wonderful ...plotting powers. But even these women ...ver co-operated with men in any enter... ...ise. They either commanded or obeyed. ...ot, generally, we and business have been ...duced by man alone. And if, as Mrs. ...Swinehoe asserts, women have usually ...had as much political power as men, ...so that they have made of it instances that ...ey preferred that war and business, law, ...overnment, and justice should be manop... ...ized by men.

Suppose, however, that any married lady ...f the highest reputation and character ...should enter into a copartnership or business ...ompany with a married man, not her hus... ...band. We venture to say that such an ...experiment has seldom been tried, and ...yet no previous reputation of ...character, or friendship for the ...husband of such a partner, would ...silence the slanderer and satisfy ...philosophic. The higher they rise ...in civilization, the more intuitively the ...ideas and interests of each are directed in ...the favor of other which each regards as ...essential to or feminine, until the ...sexuality is nothing less and little ...present two beings, each of whom is pur... ...sued in just those things in which the ...other is imperfect, and thus the two to... ...gether form twice the aggregate knowl... ...edge they would have if both knew the ...same things. The accomplishments which ...each goes to be admirable in the other, ...or the world, perhaps, seem to possess ...in themselves. As the unlikeness re... ...dues each the complement of the other, ...the more unlike the two the more com... ...plementative is the completed unit or ...individual by their union.

But if, in Mrs. Swinehoe's sense, women have, without the ballot, usually enjoyed equal political power with men, they are equally responsible for the fact that they do not vote. The admission carries every profession that the denial of the suffrage is an act of monstrous oppression. In Mrs. Swinehoe's conception, women have always had as much power to obtain the suffrage as men have had to con... ...fer or withhold it, women themselves must ...be very generally desired to hand to ...men of all political duties and responsi... ...bilities.

Upon the highest development of ...civilization the complaint "differentia... ...tion," or friction of distinct, not great incompatibility. A further coroner's case occurred in this city, Yesterday, the 5th of February, it will be remembered, I was on one of the last evidently the quality of women in the City of Gotham, when the body of a young lady was found floating in the North River, at the foot of Fifty-second street. At the time of the discovery of the body, it was supposed that it was that of a young lady who had been missed from one of the fashionable boarding houses in the neighborhood, and it was not until the following day that the body was identified as that of Mrs. Fox, a young married woman, who had left her husband's residence in Fifty-second street, on the night of the 11th of February last, and never returned into the house. Mrs. Fox was the daughter of fifty thousand dollars, and had married a man of the name of Fox, who was employed in some of the government offices at Washington. Mr. Fox was a man of fine personal appearance, and was very much liked by his friends; consisted of expectations, or what they considered expectations, of one day inheriting a handsome fortune from his father, who is a wealthy and highly respectable merchant of this city.
